

THE MOON IN A ZODIAC

ARIES

By Renata Loree

How it started

Welcome to the exploration of the Moon in the Zodiac Symbolism

I feel like I need to explain what brought me to creating this project. The idea was percolating in me for many years. And being a Gemini with many ideas swirling in my head on daily bases, I started many times, only to give up the minute something else caught my interest.. But I really never really abandon it. In a way I never gave up, I just had to find a good reason to keep it going. I finally started to see all the benefits of it's existence, I just needed a good reason to stick with it. And the reason being the drive to know myself better. As I was doing these continuing studies, I realized slowly that there is so much knowledge hidden in the symbolism I decided that it needs to be shared and so I would like to take you with me on a journey through creative journaling on the moons of the Zodiac. All you really need is pen and paper, or a simple journal, but you can also make it more fun and interesting by exploring your creativity while you learn. You can also just make it all about creativity, knowing these symbols give you a new direction in your art. For that you might need a proper journal.

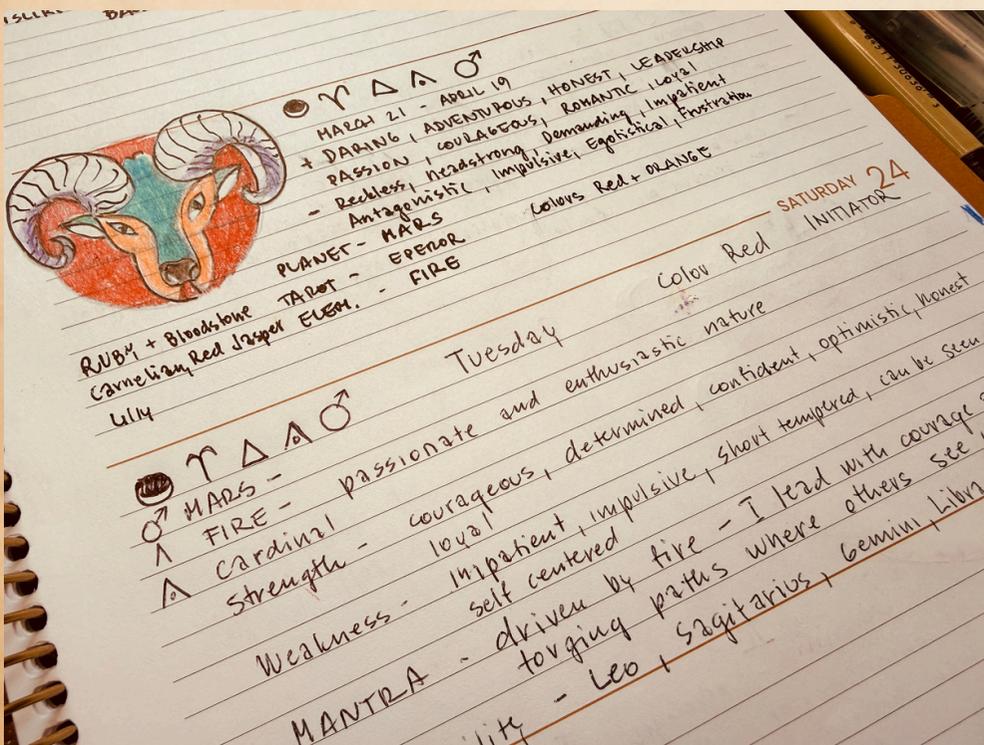

How to set up your journal

There are three parts to setting up your journal

Find a journal that you like. Ideally, it would contain the monthly full overview and also pages for entries for the day of the month.

Creating glyphs

In the monthly overview we will add small drawing or symbols that best represents our understanding of the particular sign in the moon for that day

Daily journal explorations

In the paragraphs of the daily journal entries, we are going to start exploring more detail work of the particular sign through symbols and journal studies.

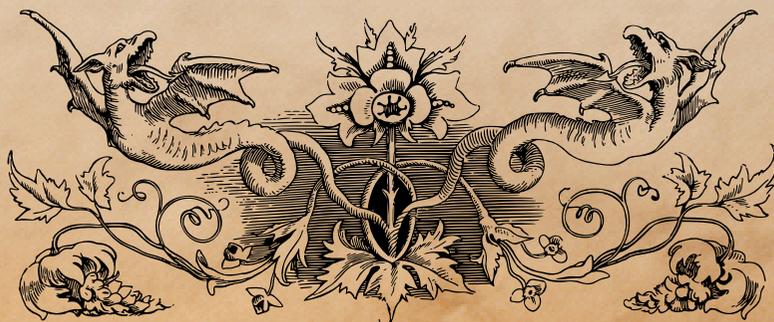

Part 1.

Gathering inspiration for Aries symbolism.

In google search bar - type in Aries zodiac sign symbolism. Most of the artwork there was created by artists also working with the zodiac sign, but some of them were created by AI. You could use these images to create quick sketches or take notes in your journal. These are for reference only. If you work in Pinterest, you can save your images right in there for future reference. .

You can also find wealth of reference in public domain images. Historical art is prolific in using symbolism of astrology and the zodiac, and many religious artworks are filled with them. Look for any correspondences to planets, stars, flowers, crystals, if it is a cardinal, fixed or mutable sign, water, air, earth or fire sign.

You could also see that the signs are related to certain body parts or days of the week. You want to write all these down and also note down the the simple glyphs that represent them. The symbols are the understanding of the sign that we want to understand and connect with.

Why are we starting in April January 1st is the start of our New year, but a long, long time ago the length of the year was measured by the cycles of the moon, there were 13 cycles total.
After the New moon in Pices the year was awakened to new growth in Aries.

Following the moon cycle

Our lives don't run in a straight line of time, it really follows a circular line that starts at a point on the circle, continues around its circumference, only to arrive at the same point, but maybe this time gain a little more understanding. This cycle is represented by an image of the ouroboros, the snake that bites its own tail.

Observing the flow

When we do connect to our own circular existence through the cycles of the moon, we become the witness to the forces that move through us and around us. We will start to understand that there are hidden forces that guide us in all this.

The moon as our guide

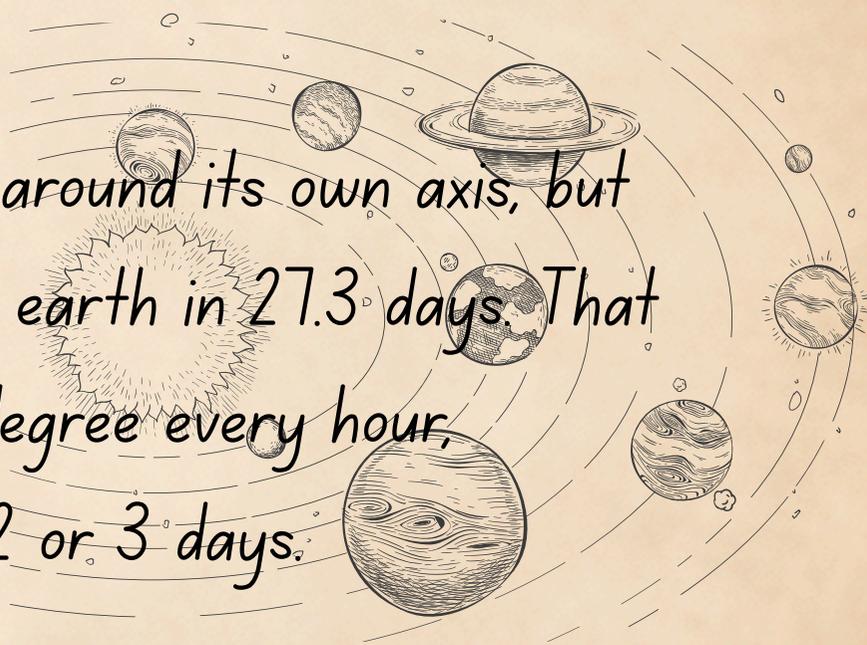

The moon is our reflective state.

In our sun sign we connect to our ego, but in the energies of the moon are stored all the emotions and sensitivities of our personality. It is the place where we relate to our needs, not wants.

The moon in the zodiac

It takes one day for the Earth to rotate around its own axis, but the Moon completes one orbit around the earth in 27.3 days. That allows it to travel across our sky half a degree every hour, maintaining position in one sign between 2 or 3 days.

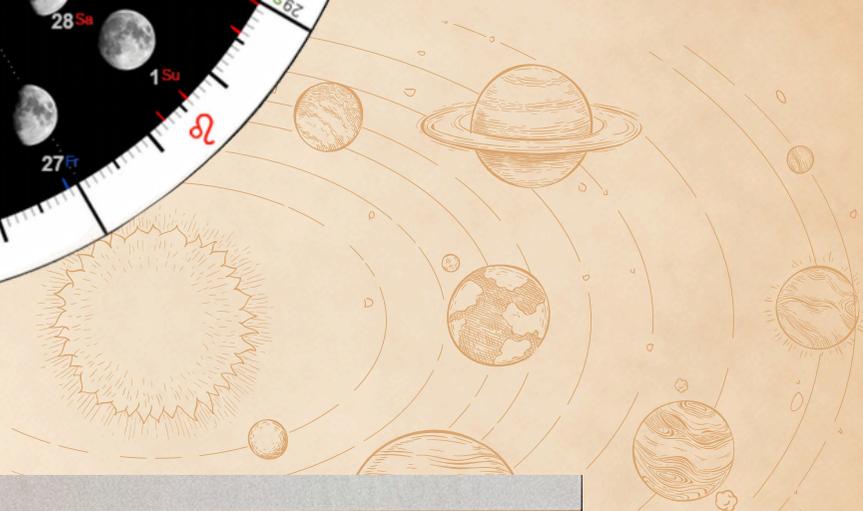

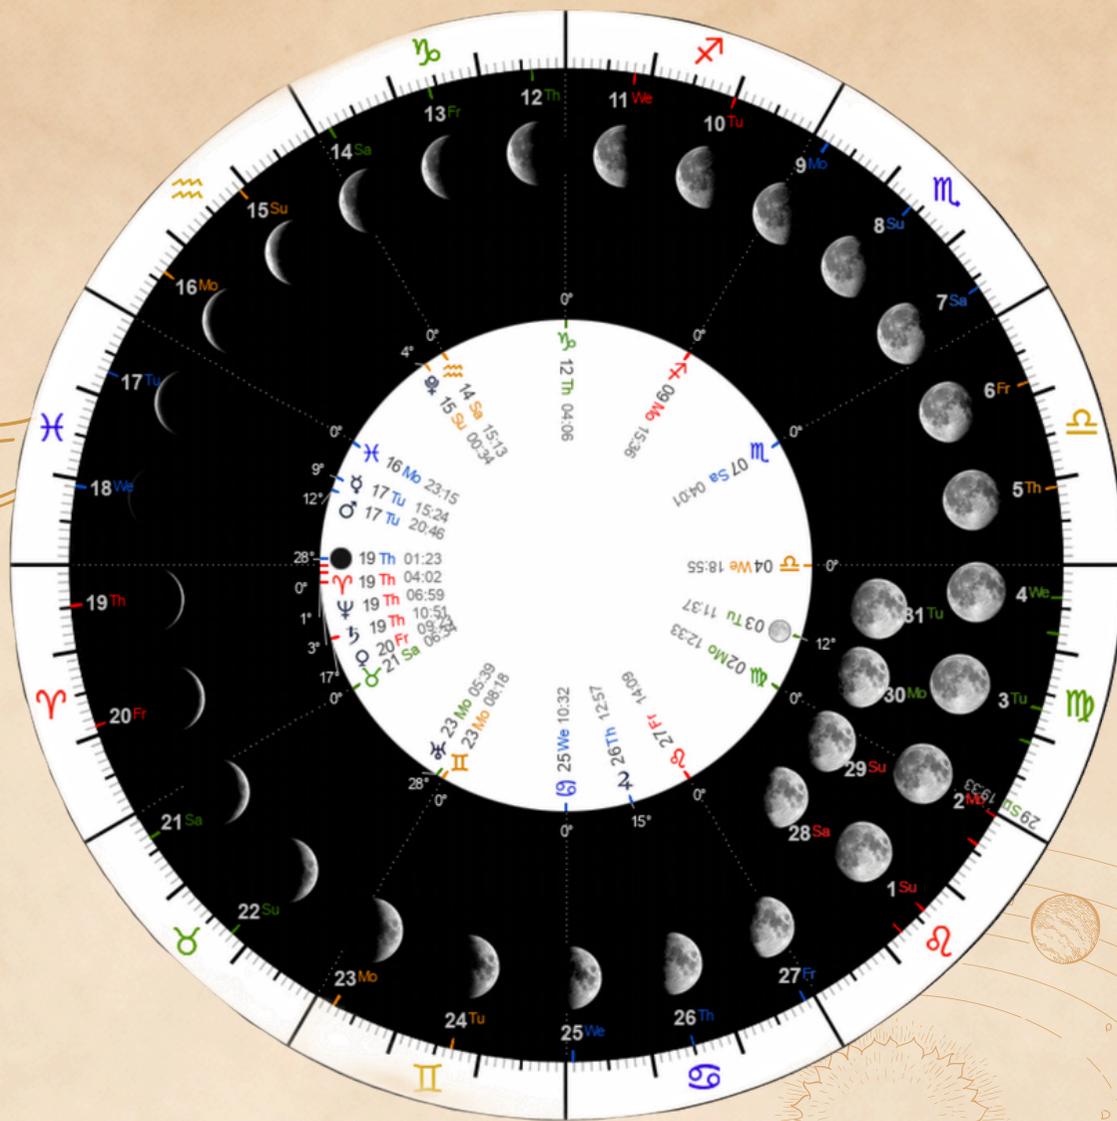

Preperation for our monthly Journey

I use the website Astro-seek.com to find information about the sun, moon and any other astrological references and charts. I invite you to do the same, but you will find other websites and apps helpful.

The Zodiac Signs through the year.

We will be tracking the moon's journey through the zodiac signs; however, it follows the same pattern than the signs we observe during our orbit around the sun. While we take a month to move through each sign, the moon shifts its position every two to three days.

Part 2

Why undertake all this demanding work? Ultimately, it's your decision. How you choose to spend your time is completely up to you. Personally, I have a passion for painting, and during my exploration of historical artworks, I discovered that they often contained symbolism and astrological elements, as if they were trying to convey a message to us. In ancient times, literacy was a privilege reserved for the wealthy few who could afford education. Written texts, primarily found in the Bible and illuminated manuscripts, were paired with images rich in symbolism related to the text being read. These intricate visuals narrated meaningful tales passed down from ancient teachings — stories of mythologies that connect us to the natural world. They provided guidance on how to navigate life and relationships, offering understanding and clarity.

Part 2

In challenging times, individuals often seek out ancient wisdom that has stood the test of time and proven beneficial. Engaging in this work requires patience; it doesn't all need to happen at once. Even small steps allow us to discover more about ourselves, our loved ones, and those who challenge us. We gain insights into the universe around us and learn how to navigate it effectively.

This journey is profoundly revealing, and the understanding it provides is invaluable and should not be overlooked. Many modern practices have roots in this ancient knowledge, often rebranded as new science, with their validity supported by recent research.

However, I must caution you—once you begin to explore and maintain your curiosity, there's no limit to where this journey can lead. Occasionally, you may need to pause to stay aligned with your main path. We are starting small, learning through art and creativity, as I believe this is the most effective way to absorb knowledge. The impressions created by images resonate deeply, impacting your subconscious in a lasting manner and uncovering hidden truths within you.

Part 3 final project

After engaging in all this work and study, you may find yourself inspired to create a small painting, a larger canvas, or even a collage. I have another separate journal dedicated for this. Over time, you'll begin to notice subtle shifts in your perception of the world around you, recognizing the connections between your newfound knowledge and the objective reality that is intuitively perceived. Life may start to feel akin to stepping into Alice's Wonderland. While I can't make any promises, you might discover new joys along the way. Best of luck on your journey!
